

Jeff Carlisle

VP of Government Relations, Lenovo

Jeff Carlisle is the Vice President, Government Relations and has responsibility for government relations in the Americas, Europe/Middle East/Africa and Asia-Pacific outside of China. He joined Lenovo after having served as Deputy Chief and then Chief of the FCC's Wireline Competition Bureau, where he managed the development of the Commission's policies on VoIP, broadband, competitive entry into the local exchange market, and bankruptcy. Before working at the FCC, he practiced law independently and as an associate at the Washington, D.C., office of O'Melveny & Myers. He received a B.A. in History, magna cum laude, from UCLA, a J.D. from Boalt Hall and an M.A. in Law and Diplomacy from The Fletcher School.

